

Contents

Global Studies: Latin America and the Caribbean

Preface	viii
World Map	xii

UNIT 1

Latin America: Myth and Reality 2

Latin America Map

Chapter 1	Mexico (A Country Challenged)	8
-----------	-------------------------------	---

UNIT 2

Central America: Lands in Turmoil 20

Central America Map

Chapter 2	Belize	28
Chapter 3	Costa Rica (Republic of Costa Rica)	32
Chapter 4	El Salvador (Republic of El Salvador)	38
Chapter 5	Guatemala (Republic of Guatemala)	44
Chapter 6	Honduras (Republic of Honduras)	50
Chapter 7	Nicaragua (Republic of Nicaragua)	56
Chapter 8	Panama (Republic of Panama)	64

UNIT 3

South America: An Imperfect Prism 70

South America Map

Chapter 9	Argentina (Argentine Republic)	78
Chapter 10	Bolivia (Republic of Bolivia)	86
Chapter 11	Brazil (Federative Republic of Brazil)	92
Chapter 12	Chile (Republic of Chile)	102
Chapter 13	Colombia (Republic of Colombia)	110
Chapter 14	Ecuador (Republic of Ecuador)	118
Chapter 15	Guyana (Cooperative Republic of Guyana)	124
Chapter 16	Paraguay (Republic of Paraguay)	128
Chapter 17	Peru (Republic of Peru)	132
Chapter 18	Suriname (Republic of Suriname)	140
Chapter 19	Uruguay (Oriental Republic of Uruguay)	144
Chapter 20	Venezuela (Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela)	148

UNIT 4

The Caribbean: Sea of Diversity 156

The Caribbean Map

Chapter 21	Antigua and Barbuda	164
Chapter 22	The Bahamas (Commonwealth of the Bahamas)	168
Chapter 23	Barbados	172
Chapter 24	Cuba (Republic of Cuba)	176
Chapter 25	Dominica (Commonwealth of Dominica)	184
Chapter 26	Dominican Republic	188
Chapter 27	Grenada	192
Chapter 28	Haiti (Republic of Haiti)	196
Chapter 29	Jamaica	202
Chapter 30	St. Kitts–Nevis (Federation of St. Kitts and Nevis)	206
Chapter 31	St. Lucia	210
Chapter 32	St. Vincent and the Grenadines	214
Chapter 33	Trinidad and Tobago (Republic of Trinidad and Tobago)	218

Regional Articles

1. The Paradoxes of Latin America, Mario Vargas Llosa, The American Interest, February 2008. “Latin America’s wealth lies in its being many things simultaneously—so many . . . that it is a microcosm in which all the races and cultures of the world exist.” 224
2. Violence against Women, Dr. César Chelala, Américas, May/June 2009. “In Latin America and the Caribbean . . . it is estimated that approximately 40 percent of the women in the region have experienced domestic violence.” 228
3. The Return of Continuismo?, Shelley A. McConnell, Current History, February 2010. “Latin America is witnessing an all-too-familiar pattern of presidents’ manipulating the constitutional framework to seek additional terms in office.” 230
4. Hemispheric Echoes, Larry Birns and Nicholas Birns, Harvard International Review, August 31, 2007. The authors examine the phenomenon of Latin American populism, its roots and goals, and how these have shaped U.S. policy toward the region. 236
5. Dollarization Declines in Latin America, José M. Cartas, Finance & Development, March 2010. Over the past decade some Latin American countries have moved away from dependence on the dollar and have put more trust in their own currencies. 240
6. The New Mercantilism: China’s Emerging Role in the Americas, Eric Farnsworth, Current History, February 2011. China’s search for raw materials and export markets has both positive and negative impacts on Latin American economic growth and development. 242

Mexico

7. The Real War in Mexico, Shannon O’Neil, Foreign Affairs, July/August 2009. “Hysteria over bloodshed in Mexico clouds the real challenge: the rising violence is a product of democratization—and the only real solution is to continue strengthening Mexican democracy.” 247

Central America

8. Central America’s Security Predicament, Michael Shifter, Current History, February 2011. Regional instability is the result of “deteriorating internal security conditions,” economic stagnation, and high levels of violence. Much of the violence is attributable to drug gangs. 253
9. In Honduras, Land Struggles Highlight Post-Coup Polarization, Elisabeth Malkin, New York Times, September 16, 2011. In the absence of meaningful land reform, farm workers have “laid claim to land which is owned by one of the richest men in Honduras.” 259
10. Argentina’s Troubled Transition, Hector E. Schamis, Current History, February 2008. Argentina “faces multiple difficulties in trying to build durable and robust democratic institutions.” Inordinate executive power coupled with the vagaries of the economic cycle spell trouble for the country’s democratic system. 261
11. Machisma, Cynthia Gorney, National Geographic, September 2011. “How a mix of female empowerment and steamy soap operas helped bring down Brazil’s fertility rate and stoke its vibrant economy.” 266
12. Go Before You Die, Patrick Graham, Harper’s Magazine, February 2008. Although traveling through Colombia has become less dangerous, that security has come at a high human cost. A fitful peace is the result of deals struck with killers on the left and right, guerrillas and paramilitaries. Both sides profited from an ugly drug trade that still persists in this geographically diverse and beautiful country. 270
13. Wolf Sheds Fleece: Venezuela’s Drift to Authoritarianism, The Economist, January 30, 2010. President Hugo Chavez, through referenda, won constitutional changes that abolished term limits for the president and other senior elected officials. Discontent over “crime, inflation, and power and water shortages” have resulted in large antigovernment protests. 277
14. Chavez Struggles to Fix Venezuela’s Housing Crisis, Christopher Toothaker, Associated Press, December 27, 2011. Rural-to-urban migration in combination with recent natural disasters have left over 30,000 people in Caracas without adequate housing. The government has not been able to meet its promises to provide adequate accommodations. 279

---

15. In Cuba Property Thaw, New Hope for a Decayed Icon, Peter Orsi and Andrea Rodriguez, Associated Press, December 18, 2011. The redevelopment of the fabled Malecon on Havana's waterfront is symptomatic of the emergence of a new economic model in Cuba. 281

16. The Stomachs of Strongmen, Ann Louise Bardach, New York Times, August 21, 2011. The relationship of Fidel Castro and Hugo Chavez is examined in the context of their serious abdominal health problems. Cuba's close economic, political, and ideological ties to Venezuela are explored, as are the significant changes underway in Cuba. 284

Caribbean

17. Planting Hope on Hispaniola, Tommy Ventre, World Watch, January/February 2008. "Haiti and the Dominican Republic are both grappling with ravaged forests, each in its own way." 286

18. Aftershocks, David Heymann, The World Today, February 2010. The horrific Haitian earthquake killed hundreds of thousands, left a million without homes, and an infrastructure incapable of a meaningful response. "Could it have been different in Haiti? Would good planning have eased the pain of the shocks?" 290

Internet References 292

Appendix A: United States Map and Statistics 294

Appendix B: Canada Map and Statistics 296

Glossary of Terms and Abbreviations 297

Bibliography 300

Index 301