Glossary/Index

Activities & Skill Building

With this activities-based health program, students find support for mastering important content and skills.

- ✓ Glencoe Health, First Canadian Edition uses integrated, hands-on activities to encourage your students to make healthy life decisions. Through these high-interest, real-life applications, they'll learn to recognize and stand up to peer pressure, model good health behaviours, and develop solid decision-making skills that will last a lifetime.

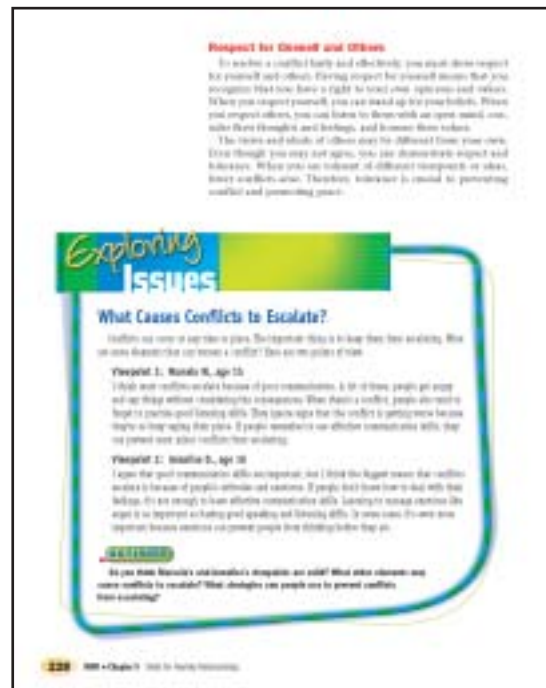

Health Skills Activity

Health Skills Activity allows students to practice skills in communication, decision making, refusal, conflict resolution, and goal setting.

Exploring Issues

Exploring Issues promotes critical thinking and healthy behaviours, and encourages students to examine their own opinions about current health issues by showing them viewpoints from actual students—and challenging them to express their own views.

Personal Health Inventory

Personal Health Inventory gives students the chance to assess their personal health habits and attitudes at the beginning of each chapter, then re-assess those attitudes at the end of the chapter to see if their perspectives have changed.

Case Study

Case Study provides a snapshot of an individual student's perspective to explore the message of the chapter content and encourage students to think about how the topic relates to them personally.

Using Visuals

Using Visuals at the beginning of each chapter and lesson gives students frequent opportunities to practice their writing skills and build proficiency as they reinforce health concepts.

Hands-On Health

Hands-On Health features provide a variety of easy-to-integrate, engaging activities that allow students to experience new health concepts and apply skills in a tangible, concrete way.

Relevance

Providing skills and knowledge that help students make responsible health decisions

- ✓ How do the media influence the decisions I make?
- ✓ How do my daily decisions influence the kind of person I become?
- ✓ What kind of education do I need for a specific health career?

With Glencoe Health, First Canadian Edition your students will be able to answer questions like these, and many more.

Eye on the Media

Eye on the Media uses real-world media reports and images to show students how to critically examine and evaluate the influences of the media, so they can build media literacy skills that can be applied to media messages to which they are exposed daily.

Real-Life Application

Real-Life Application uses primary source material to guide students as they analyse, evaluate, and apply new information to make informed decisions about their health.

Health Online

Health Online encourages students to explore www.mcgrawhill.ca/links/health to find relevant activities and Weblinks that expand upon chapter content and provide additional opportunities for students to apply health concepts in the real world.

Health Minute

Health Minute offers quick, easy-to-remember, chapter-specific tips on how to live a more healthy life.

Beyond the Classroom

Beyond the Classroom gives parents and guardians an opportunity to get involved in health lessons with activities that encourage students to become involved in their local communities and beyond.

Career Profile

Career Profile features present students with snapshots of various health careers and provide details of the necessary skills and education required for each.

Character Check
