

Chapter 11. Searching for Information

Across

3. Boolean operator that returns matches only when all of the search terms are found together in an item.
6. Alta Vista is an example of a _____ search engine.
10. Search engines that look for synonyms and related ideas as well as the word you entered are _____ - oriented.
11. Tool that searches FTP servers for files.

13. Looking for information from many sources by using a single tool.
16. Searches education journals and other scholarly documents.
17. Most popular subject-oriented directory.
18. Uses the number of links to a particular page to rate its quality.
20. Directories allow you to search by _____.
21. Tool for searching for directions.

Down

1. Built with a combination of spiders and human searchers.
2. Tool to allow you to find information on the Web.
4. CNET's tool for finding useful files.
5. Designed to help students find quality on the web.
7. White pages for people and businesses.
8. Allows you to search Usenet newsgroups.
9. Relatedness to your query.

12. Askme.com finds information by using these.
14. Allows you to search for information about people such as phone numbers or e-mail addresses.
15. Used in searches to treat several words as a single phrase.
19. Search engine developed at Carnegie-Mellon University.