

Chapter 21. Making a Local Web Site and a Home Page

Down

2. Proper behavior which helps guide how much of another's Web page you can use on your own.
4. Hidden text within the HTML source.
5. Using Web page creation software that prompts you for the information needed to make a Web page.
8. Filenames should not include _____ to avoid confusion for users.
10. The copying of someone else's Web page that you think is worthwhile.
13. A Web site in which all the links are to pages on your computer.

Across

1. Putting your Web pages on a Web server to make it accessible to the world.
3. These rules dictate what images or text from others you can use on your Web page.
6. A Web page address.
7. A person's focal point on the Web.
9. A model Web page to which you can add the specifics you'll need for your page.
11. It is best to use only this type of letter in naming Web page files.
12. This HTML element can be used to layout a Web page.
13. A Web is formed by creating these between pages.
14. The 4-letter suffix for Web page filenames.