

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Alan Geare is Professor of Management at the University of Otago. Originally an economist, his PhD was in industrial (or employment) relations. Along with that, general management, industrial law and human resource management are his main academic interests. He has published a dozen books and nearly 50 articles in academic journals, including Academy of Management Review, International Labour Review and Comparative Labour Law and Policy Journal. He was on the executive of the Association of University Teachers (Otago) for eight years, and also served as Secretary and Chairman. Alan became Professor of Management at the University of Otago in 1987 and was Head of Department for 12 years. He has worked as a consultant for companies and unions, and been involved in executive education for many years. He was appointed by the Governor General as a mediator member and adjudicator member of the Employment Tribunal.

Colin Campbell-Hunt is Professor of Management at the University of Otago, where he teaches strategic management. He has also been Visiting Professor of Management at the University of St Andrews. His research focuses on competitive strategy and competitive advantage. He currently leads a large multi-disciplinary study, Competitive Advantage New Zealand—CANZ, funded by the Foundation for Research Science and Technology. The project investigates the evolution of competitive capability in a group of outstanding New Zealand firms. A book, World Famous in New Zealand, on this work was published in June 2001. His work is published in New Zealand journals, and in the European Journal of Marketing, Journal of Operations Management and Strategic Management Journal.

Diane Ruwhiu is a lecturer in the Department of Management, University of Otago. She lectures in operations strategy and supply chain management, and also teaches a postgraduate paper focusing on organisations and the natural environment. Her research is devoted to Maori business development.

Ron Bull is currently studying postgraduate Management at the University of Otago with a special interest in Treaty of Waitangi issues in both traditional and contemporary New Zealand and the impact these issues have on managing in the New Zealand context. He is of Kai Tahu descent from Oraka on the South Coast of the South Island.