

The U.S. history of indexed linked bonds is shorter than it is in the UK. In both countries the nominal interest rate has been low and relatively stable since 2003. Note: By the end of 2011 TIPs offered a negative real yield.

