

Gold is costly to store and has relatively small convenience value. The net convenience yield is generally slightly negative.

