

About the Author

SHUCHI SHARMA is an independent management consultant. She was earlier Director, Career Institute of International Management, Bhopal. She is an MBA and PhD in Management with research work in the area of Quality of Work Life.

She has more than 20 years of experience in industry and academics in the areas of Organisational Behaviour, Human Resource Management, and in Employee Training and Development. She began her career with Swaraj Mazda Ltd., Chandigarh and later worked with Jubilant Organosys, NCR Delhi. The transition from industry to academics was driven purely by interest and desire to explore management teaching and research. She brings her understanding of the requirements of the manufacturing, services and developmental sectors to the classroom and aims to equip students with in-depth functional skills, as well as critical thinking skills, necessary to successfully align individual aspirations to business objectives.

Dr Sharma has been actively pursuing consulting assignments in conceptualising and designing HR service products and training interventions related to Performance Management, High Performance Work Systems and Business Excellence for internal and external customers in a spectrum of organisations and institutions.
